Saved Child's Life.

With the wind blowing a gale and the sea running high, an operation which saved the life of a baby was performed her youth. Monday on the North German Lloyd steamship Koepigin Louise which arrived at New York yesterday. The three-year old child, apparently dead, was brought to the ship's surgeon by the frantic father. Schmierko Tebel was coming to America from Kpaerenofflew, a town near Odessa, where his store had been plundered by the revolutionists. Ba-ruch Tebel, the child, while cating an orange, swallowed part of the peel, grew black in the face, and soon lay limp in the arms of the father, Tebel rushed to the cabin of the ship's surgeon, Dr. Lodwig Mendowsky, and pounded on the door. The doctor, with his assistant, Dr. Lieber, examined the baby, & Timberman and W. F. Creighton & but feit no palse, no heart beat and no breathing. They told the father that the child was dead, but Tebel pleaded to the doctors so they agreed to try to rescue the little fellow. No anaesthetic was administered. The child was laid on the operating table and a hole cut in the windpipe, where the orange peel had closed the air passage. The peel removed, vigorous artificial respiration began. For 10 minutes there was no response, but a slight flutter of one of the eyel ds encouraged them, and soon China and Japanese make. the child was brought back to life. A silver tube was placed in in its windpipe.
